SOPHOMORE CLASS REPORT

The sophomore class enrollment in September was 146, setting a new record as the largest class yet to attend Old Town High School. On October 7, 1949, the sophomores met for the first time in Room 11 to elect class officers. Those elected were John Cutliffe, president; Fred Dow, vice-president; Rita Ogden, secretary; and Richard Fayle, treasurer. Jean Archambaud and Martin Grant were elected as representatives to the Student Council.

The upperclassmen gave us a hearty welcome with a week of initiation, climaxed by the Sophomore Reception.

The sophomore class was well represented in sports by both boys and girls and in the many school clubs. Six of our class took part in the one-act plays. They were Jessie Sargent, Frances Martin, Patricia Cyr, Shirley King, Wilfred Marquis, and Richard Fayle.

We are proud of our four boys, Richard Dawes, Richard Carlow, Robert Sawyer, and Martin Grant, who made the varsity basketball team. Representing the sophomore class on the junior varsity team were Jackie Cutliffe, Deane Finley, Fred Loring, Linwood Randall, Donald Tait, Robert Taylor, George Brissette, Wesley Carr, Clarence Barriault, and Robert Lavoie.

Many sophomore girls turned out for basketball and softball, while the number of our boys in track and baseball was not small.

We wish to thank Mrs. Webber and Mr. Spearin for being our class advisors during this year. We hope that the sophomore class next year will be as fortunate as we have been.

My Next Door Neighbors

I consider myself very fortunate indeed, for I, unlike so many other people, have no complaints about my neighbors. Quite often one hears people complaining about how difficult it is to keep on a friendly basis with their neighbors, but not I. We never have any words whatsoever. For instance, the other night I had a party in my home for more than forty guests. We danced, played records, and made enough noise to wake the dead, but not one word of complaint did I hear from the folks next door. Now, how many people are lucky enough to have such fine friends?

I visit my neighbors quite often. Sometimes I feel especially neighborly and take them flowers. My friends always have many visitors all year round. I even mow their lawn free of charge during the spring and summer months because of my great respect for my wonderful, quiet friends.

There is only one fault I can find with my neighbors; it is next to impossible to make a conversation with them. It is just like trying to strike up a conversation with a corpse, for I never seem to get a response. However, their good points certainly are more numerous than their bad ones.

One thing I am especially pleased about is the fact that they will never move away from next door, for, you see, I live next to a peaceful little cemetery.

HOWARD STEVENS '50

Peace

We seldom pick up our newspapers today without finding the word peace contained in the headlines or in some major article devoted to peace relations between disputing parties. Indeed, peace is one of the foremost thoughts in the minds of all intelligent and educated people. We read but recently that Congress has appropriated vast sums of money to the Armed Forces and is sending much abroad that America and the nations allied with her might arm to a greater extent. And yet, how ridiculous the principle when we stop to think—arming for peace.

And if we were to bring this matter closer to our own lives, we see people dissatisfied with the things (not necessities) they have acquired and still yearning for more. We find our doctor's offices crowded with people of whom statistics state that over fifty per cent have no physical ills, but simply figments of their own mental discontent. Why are homes so often broken apart, but for the fact that young people feel they can find contentment through effectual romance.

We may consider these analogies or scoff at them, but I feel that we all must come to one conclusion: that there is a desire for peace, that peace which is so often absent from the very soul of the individual.

Many years ago in the far off country of Judea there were shepherds watching their flocks by night, and we read that "an angel of the Lord appeared unto them and said, 'Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord . . .' and suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men'."

But again we say with the poet, "There is no peace on earth."

Perhaps the real answer to this problem of peace, which I feel is the greatest problem in the world, is found in the words of the Prince of Peace: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you." Truly we may join with the poet, Charles Wesley, in saying:

Hail, the Heav'n-born Prince of Peace!
Hail, the Sun of Righteousness!
Light and Life to all He brings,
Ris'n with healing in His wings.
Let us then with angels sing,
"Glory to the new-born King!
Peace on earth and mercy mild;
God and sinners reconciled!"

Being a Baby-Sitter

Ever since I began junior high school, I have had quite a few funny experiences at baby-sitting. Have you ever been left with a child who, everytime he looks at you, begins to holler and cry so loud that you wonder what kind of a creature you really are? Have you ever been a baby-sitter in a strange house, where you've run frantically through dark rooms trying to find the telephone, which is ringing with all its fury, and when you at last find it, it stops ringing? Then the baby, whom you had finally convinced to go to sleep, wakes up and demands his ten o'clock bottle. At last he is satisfied and you go downstairs to sit and listen to a mystery story on the radio. You're concentrating on the program, when suddenly there is a funny moaning noise in the other room. You sit in your chair, shivering and shaking, expecting any time to have cold, clammy hands slide around your neck. The moaning stops but a thumping noise begins, coming closer by the minute. You're panic-stricken. What are you going to do? Then "Old Skipper," the family dog, comes running into the room, his tail wagging as though he were very glad to see you. You have to laugh at yourself for being so frightened. You wonder if it's worth baby-sitting when it sometimes takes ten years off your life.

Friendly Smile

Whenever you walk down the street
And you're feeling very sad,
A friendly smile from one you meet
Can make your heart so glad.

So think of that when you're the one
Whose feeling very gay,
And flash your smile to everyone
Who comes along your way.

Not Wanted?

Joe Brown, a Negro student at Norview Prep School in the state of New York, and I were going to our dormitory. We had just come from a meeting of the school paper staff.

"It's a swell afternoon, isn't it, Bob?" Joe asked me.

"It sure is. Let's go for a swim—" I cut my sentence short, remembering the sign at the swimming pool which prevented Negroes from swimming there. Just then a big black car came screeching around the corner. An arm was thrust out of an open window and a bottle of indelible ink crashed on the sidewalk in front of us, splashing ink all over our clothes.

After a few minutes of quietness Joe exclaimed, "They did things like this to me in Virginia, but I never expected it here in New York."

I, who had lived in Virginia, realized the truth in Joe's words, and swore I would stick by him until he was accepted as one of the regular fellows on the campus. When we got to the dormitory, we saw Ed White, one of the greatest athletes in the minds of his friends. To our amazement, he had ink all over his hand. This was enough to give us suspicion that he was the one who had thrown ink at us. Evidently he had something against Joe. This made me very angry, but it did not disturb Joe at all.

Just then a fire alarm rang and everyone ran for the exit. In the wild rush to the door, Ed White sprained his ankle and could not walk. Everyone ran right past him and didn't help him—everyone except Joe. Joe, with his strong arms, picked Ed up and carried him to safety.

This instance made Joe a hero in the minds of everyone. He sure was a great guy!

Did You Ever Ride the Bus to School or It Shouldn't Happen to a Dog

You get—
Kicked in the shins,
Bumped in the head
Knocked all around
Till you wish you were dead.
The noise is so loud
That you soon become "deef,"
Even the grownups
Will cause you some grief.
Little kids screaming
And wrestling in the aisle;
Young girls always gabbing
About the latest style.
You get shoved by grimy hands
And jabbed with fountain pens.
You can count your black and blue marks
By the fives and tens.
And when you stumble off
Your hair is all awry,
But you sniff the fresh air
And breathe a happy sigh.

Lovers Still

His hair as wintry snow is white,
Her trembling lips are slow,
His eyes have lost their merry light,
Her cheeks their merry glow,
And yet though feeble, gray, and old
They're faithful love will not grow cold.

I Wish

I wish I were small so I could sail
An elm leaf in an autumn gale,
Down the stream or in the brook,
Like a Viking or Captain Hook.

A spider's web would be my mast,
To run my ship would be no task,
A little trout would be my whale,
I wish I were small so I could sail.

The moon and stars would guide my way
To newer worlds where I might stay,
The ship's log would bear this tale,
I wish I were small so I could sail.

My Gift

This gift I give, when I am gone,
To those I leave behind—
The will to live most graciously
In word and deed and mind.

This gift I give, when I am gone,
To those I leave behind—
The truth, no matter what the cost,
Far better than a troubled mind.

This gift I give, when I am gone,
To those and Him above—
The greatest gift of all, I think,
Yes, 'tis my gift of love.

Theresa Beauchesne '52

My Wish

I wish I had plenty of money,
Money, oh money to spend;
I'd buy myself a brand new car
And goodness knows where I'd end.

I'd go from here to the western coast
To buy myself a home;
Then I'd marry a brilliant and handsome man
And never be left alone.

I'd do the things I wanted to
And buy the things I saw;
For making wishes all come true
There ought to be a law.

RUBY ADAMS '50

There Ain't No Justice

I guess I'm not lucky like everyone else. I never have a good time at the Saturday night dances. Of course I've been to only three, but just the same that was enough. I was looking forward to a gala evening with plenty of dances and maybe even a jitterbug or two. And then I thought maybe some nice man would ask if he might take me home and if he might see me again. I even imagined all the events I'd go to with him and what an impression I'd make on all the fellows.

Arriving at the dance, I met my girl friends, who told me what a wonderful time they were having. My spirits soared. Tonight would be my night. My first dance was taken by a short, scrawny fellow. Of course, even though he wasn't my dream of a prince charming, I went on with him—I was afraid to sit alone. The dance did end quickly because I kept thinking how wonderful the next one would be with the man.

As the music began for the second dance, I glanced hopefully around, but the one I saw coming toward me was that same fellow. He was nice enough and a pretty good dancer, but golly, I wanted to dance with someone else. All evening it kept on like this. Every time the music started, I glanced around and saw the same fellow coming toward me. No matter where I stood or sat, he always managed to find me. I stayed out in the corridor until the music started and everyone began dancing, thinking he would ask someone else; but, lo and behold, there he was, patiently waiting for me as I went inside. I knew I was stuck. I couldn't stand it any longer. I ran to get my coat and hurried out the door, fearing he would follow me. For once, my luck held and I arrived home safely—without him. I told myself I'd never go again.

But you know, the kids are talking about how much fun the dance will be this Saturday. I think I'll go. Maybe tonight I'll meet THE MAN.

The Butterfly

The butterfly gracefully flutters upon a rose bud,
Drinking in its delicate sweetness;
Its wings, sprinkled with gold dust, sparkle as highly polished sapphires
Upon the ruby red of the soft, velvety petals.
A slap of its wings and it is gone, quick as a flash,
Returning again like a shimmering, shining star
Appearing in the darkening sky.

GLORIA KING '50

Little Hands

Such little hands to do so much,
They damage everything they touch,
They never tire or seem to dread
The punishment that lies ahead.

At breakfast we find it is a fact
The sugar's a castle to attack,
The butter's a gold brick that someone has taken,
The leg of the table just has to be shaken.

Her cocoa is spilled and her jacket gets wet,
She breaks the big platter to mommie's new set,
She falls off a chair, her poor little nose
Is flattened, it hurts and is red as a rose.

Poor little girl, will she ever learn
That to touch a hot stove is to get a bad burn;
To run up the stairs and get mommie's lipstick
Is a reason her hands might get spanked rather quick.

Poor little kitty lets out a loud wail,
Two little hands have hold of his tail,
In comes the baby just covered with flour
And yells to her mommie, "Come, see my high tower."

Its nappy time now, the baby is sleeping,
And into her crib a proud mommie is peeping,
She looks at those hands, so little and white,
In one is a dolly clutched ever so tight.

Oh dear little girl, this mommie is sad,
She punished you when you were not really bad,
But never mind, darling, when sleep is all done,
You will have forgotten, to my arms you will run.

Raptures of Nature

Have you ever sat on the shore of a lake and watched the sun as it first peeks over the distant horizon, lazily mounting higher and higher into the sky? If not, you have missed one of nature's greatest masterpieces.

From the first moment of its upward itinerary, you are held spellbound in an atmosphere of hushed serenity, broken only by the occasional echo of a loon calling its mate, or the monotonous croaking of frogs in a nearby swamp. Rising above the mountains which tower over the treetops on the opposite shore, this brilliant ball outlines massive silhouettes of red and gold. Suddenly the magnificent splendor of this sight has passed, leaving you with a vow to return on the morrow to experience again the sheer exhilaration of this early morning scene.

The sun has now risen well into the sky, and the reflection of its rays forms bright sparkly paths over the surface of the water, resembling the silvery network of sequins on an evening dress. Awakening from tranquil meditation, you suddenly become aware of mosquitoes, milling and buzzing around you, and of the rhythmic peck, peck, peck of a busy woodpecker. All around the lake spirals of smoke circle the roofs of camps; happy children's voices ring across the waters; dogs offer their cheery good-mornings to the world at large; boats are loosened from their moors and motors refueled in preparation for a pre-breakfast spin. Yes, the lake has awakened, and another day has begun. And, as the tantalizing odor of bacon fills the air, you realize that you, too, are awake and very hungry, so you hurry off to breakfast, welling over with happiness and that "wonderful to be alive" feeling, a very special feeling that is dissimilar to other moods of happiness.

It is very difficult to interpret this feeling on paper, but I am sure that if you have ever shared an experience such as this, you will understand exactly what I mean.

A Prayer

Help me not to think selfishly of Christmas. Help me to remember that on this day, many, many years ago, in a little town called Bethlehem, God gave us His Son. Help me to pray, not only today but every day, as Jesus would want me to. Help me to be forgiving. Help me to resist sin. Help me to love my fellowmen.

Never let me forget to Whom I owe so much but, should I forget, remind me that prayer is a privilege, not a duty.

Help me, in a world full of sin and corruption, to live up to the standards Jesus has set for me. Help me each day so that the deeds I do will add to, rather than detract from, my esteem in His eyes.

Help me to be honest in all I do. Last, and this is my greatest plea, help me to help myself.

Blessings

Did you ever sit by a campfire
And dream at the closing of day,
Listening to beautiful noises
That are heard in the distance away?

A deer may crack through the bushes,
An owl may awaken your dream,
As you rest by your cozy bright campfire,
At the side of a clear rushing stream.

A whip-poor-will sings in the moonlight.
He sings as he goes on his way;
Thank God for the blessings of nature
And the end of a beautiful day.

JEAN RUSTIN '50

Soliloquy

The earth was dull and drab that April day,
The fields like patchwork quilts lay white and brown,
And over all a solemn stillness lay,
While heaven's brooding forehead seemed to frown.

I stood upon a lonely hilltop high,
And in the wind I heard, through all the years.
Man's voice recalling sorrow, pain, and strife.
While silently the sky rained down her tears

It seemed to me, as I was standing there,
The world was spread before my wondering eye,
And ugliness and grief was everywhere.
"Can beauty grow in such a world?" thought I.

Then at my feet I saw a blossom pure,
And knew how in this world of war and strife
God's promise still forever shall endure,
"To any man is Beauty and New Life."

WILMA MONROE '50

Baseball, Pooh!

It's a hit! It's a hit! Baseball. America's favorite sport. What is this world coming to. Why, now they are even teaching poor little innocent children to play baseball.

What do I care what the battery will be for tomorrow's game. Just when I want to listen to something intellectual on the radio, some ghastly creature is yelling in my ear, "It's over! it's over! and it's a home run!" Who cares if Teddy Williams has just hit his forty-second home run of the year. Just because his opponent was the New York Yankees' ace relief pitcher, Joe Page, they seem to think it's very important since it sweeps the series for the Red Sox.

Some people, who, incidentally, don't know the difference between the President and Vice-President, are able to sit on those horrible wooden planks for hours watching a silly ball game. There they sit, getting burned up by the sun, when they could be at home calmly listening to an interesting program.

It used to be that you could pick up a newspaper and read all about the happenings in the world. Now, however, all you can read are the events in the major and minor leagues. Honestly, I don't see how people can lower themselves to this standard.

Pardon me, what did you say? You want me to go to a major league ball game? At Fenway Park? Oh! just think, I'll be able to see my two favorites, the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox. I'm so excited I can hardly wait.

Penob-S-Cot

Once upon a time there was an Indian named Penob. All of the white settlers were trying to catch him because he had stolen some articles from the village store. This Indian was very sly and was hardly ever seen. Most of the time he did his stealing at night.

The village was on the banks of the "Unnamed River." One night Penob thought he would go to the village and do a little looting. As he neared the village in his canoe, he saw some furs piled up beside a boathouse which was about twenty feet from shore. He beached his canoe and crept cautiously toward the furs. When he got within two feet of them, he was grabbed by several white men. He then knew that this was a trap. Penob battled his way back to his canoe and headed out onto the "Unnamed River." Reaching the center of it, he started downstream. The white men were very close behind him in another canoe. Soon they overtook Penob and captured him. He was taken to the village and kept in captivity until the next day when the white men then took Penob to the place where he was punished. They were shouting "Penob's (cot) caught. Penob's (cot) caught."

Many years later the "Unnamed River" was named Penobscot in memory of the most elusive Indian in the history of this village.

WILFRED GUAY '51

The Penobscot River

All my life I've watched her drift
Through the heart of my home town,
Constrained though she is for business' sake
She goes rolling ever down.

Down through cities, woods, and fields,
Down 'till she meets the sea,
But the island-dotted branching part
Is special for you and me.

In summer I've seen the sunset,
So brilliant I hardly could look,
A radiant aura on a faraway mountain,
And shadows in landings and nook.

In winter I've seen her girdled
With the fastness of ice and snow,
And a sawdust trail that means sustenance
For the Braves, 'till her waters flow.

Her moods are varied, she's cried, she's cold,
And as old as this dear old town,
But she leaves her beauty for all to see
As she goes rolling ever down.

Crazy Quilt

Once my grandma made me
A patchwork quilt so gay,
To see it there upon my bed
Would chase my blues away.

The colors that she used to put
In this crazy quilt of mine
Are every bit as bright as shoes
That have a brand new shine.

Never would I part with it;
Though it's not worth a lot
In gold, to me it's priceless
With charm that can't be bought.

Party Line

Have you ever listened in on a conversation when someone is using the telephone on your party line? Well, some rainy day when you are just moping around the house, trying to find something to do, sit down in a comfortable chair and pick up your telephone receiver. The experience may turn out to be interesting.

When it is a rainy day, most women find gossiping with their friends a wonderful way to pass the time of day. Naturally the ideal way to do this is to use the telephone, as it requires little exertion. Here is an example of what you might hear.

"Hello, Tillie. This is May. I simply must tell you about Jane Snodgrass. Last night I saw her at the Brown Derby, and guess what she was wearing—a mink coat."

"Why, May, I can't believe it. I never thought she had money to make even a down payment on one."

"But, Tillie, wait till you hear this. Her hair was red! Goodness, think of it, dyeing her hair, and forty-five years old."

"Oh, May, by the way, did you get an invitation to Rose Stakepole's tea?"

"Yes, Tillie, I did, but I really can't decide whether to go or not. You see, she has also invited Susie Henkle. If there's one woman I can't stand, it's Susie Henkle. I always seem to get stuck next to her at parties, and she practically talks my ears off. All she does is gossip about her neighbors. Oh, oh, I have a cake in the oven, and I think it's burning. I'll have to hang up now. Goodbye."

Well, now that I have given you a sample of how interesting a rainy afternoon can be, all you have to do is sit back and wait for one to come along. Then, just pick up your phone, relax in a soft chair, and glue your ear to the receiver.

The Walk I Took

The wind was blowing the curtains back lightly. The sky looked like a beautiful blue lake. I hopped out of bed like a rabbit, and pulled on my clothes faster than I hopped out of bed. I opened the door like an elf pounding tacks into a shoe. I ran down the winding road. The black-eyed Susans looked as if a bee were sitting on each one. The walk I took was as long as the hands on a clock, a magic clock that stretches its hands.

A Lumbering Operation

As I rode along one spring day I came to a large pine grove. Men were wielding heavy blades to fell the forest giants, and I could not help stopping to watch. I noticed high up in one of the pines a porcupine hanging on for his life.

As I listened, the buzz of a heavy crosscut saw came to me as it gnawed its way through the century old giant, and the chug-chug of a mighty Diesel tractor as it wound its way through the forest; then a groan and a splintering as a large pine made its way earthward, and the ever familiar shout of tim-ber!

I stepped from the car and as I walked towards the working men the clean, fresh odor of new pine hit me. As I came closer I noticed the odor of the tractor and of stale tobacco. In the distance I saw a mighty pine sway and plunge earthward. The whole forest trembled as the big tree hit with a great echoing crash.

Waiting

My pounding heart seems to have lost all sense of speed regulation and I can feel the cold beads of sweat on my icy forehead. I wonder silently if I shall be able to go through with it. Of course I shall have to, but it is this agonizing waiting that I can hardly bear. If only it could be over immediately, but no, it's just wait, other people feel as I do at a crucial time like this, or am I oddly different? Well, I certainly can't ask anyone because my throat is so dry that I know I shouldn't be able to utter a single word. Anyway, I don't believe I am supposed to speak aloud to anyone.

Oh, it is so humid and deathly quiet in here. Why don't they get it over with? Perhaps if I weren't first I wouldn't mind it so much. Did someone just call my name, Elizabeth Ann Addison? I get up slowly, twisting my handkerchief nervously in my clammy hands. It seems that everyone is watching me as I ascend the steps carefully to receive proudly my high school diploma.

Ice Out

The day dawned in regal splendor with the promise of warm, limpid sunshine, a soothing change from the incessant rains of the four previous days. The water rose steadily, and the last vestige of winter, the ice locked river, watched for its opportunity to break for freedom. Idling spectators, chattering and laughing in anxiety, anxiously awaited the inspiring phenomenon of spring in full force. The rotting smell of stagnant, porous ice that permeated the air was soon to be replaced by the clean, fresh smell of moving water.

Time passed by slowly, monotonously. At noontime, spectators came and went to and from their meals. There had been no sign of movement all morning. "Would it go out today?" This was the question on everyone's tongue.

At one o'clock the water was still rising. The solid, grayish mass of ice shivered in anticipation. Suddenly the afternoon air was rent by a loud snap like the crackling of an electric shock. The ice shuddered, sighed, groaned, rasped, and began to move. The race to the sea was on, slowly at first, but gradually gathering momentum.

"There she goes!" was the exultant shout from hundreds of voices in unison.

The stoic river, ruthless in its battle to escape from its winter prison, was making its triumphant bid for freedom. Undeniably the force of the mighty current churned and pushed the massive sheet. The rasping sound of ice ground the shores. Bluish ice cakes dove in and out of the water like squadrons of soldierly porpoises. Huge bergs, now floating freely in the swiftly moving channel, battered and crushed each other into tiny tinkling particles. Nothing man made can stop this surge, once caught in the grip of the current.

People chide each other, paid and collected friendly wagers made weeks earlier. Dogs barked at nothing and at everything. The river, rippling and murmuring its song of freedom in happiness, twinkled in the bright sunlight being reflected on wind-made ripples. Nature's seasonal evolution had freed the Penobscot from its cold winter solitude.

Taffy

I have a cat who's the craziest thing,
You see, I don't think he's all there;
Instead of lying as most cats do,
He lies with his feet in the air.
He's colored awfully funny too,
Streaked all taffy and white,
And when you go to love him
All he wants to do is bite.
Still, he's the pride and joy of my father
And part with him—no, he would not,
For the crazy things our crazy cat does
Are treasures that can't be bought.

Right or Wrong?

"He was just another tramp-child when he entered this town fifteen years ago with his drunkard father. Even then, at the young age of ten, he had been motherless for almost six years. His shabby clothes, uncombed hair, worn out shoes, and all the other miseries that go with having an uninterested parent certainly did not help him in the great task of getting acquainted and feeling at home among the other children of his age and grade.

"The reputation of his father started stories that spread like wild fire. Overhearing these stories being "ohed" and "ahed" over by the town gossips in every corner drug store contributed greatly to the uneasiness of his nature. His whole disposition and attitude now date back to this time in his life when his security and popularity were so unsure.

"This same boy a short time later, unable to find acceptance in school by either the teachers or the students, turned to crime to attain some feeling of recognition and accomplishment. He fell in with a wrong crowd that to him seemed right and friendly. This feeling was due, for the most part, to the fact that they were children in the same state of mind as himself. Because of their acceptance of him, he in turn accepted their morals and standards of conduct, some of which were not up to the level that society has established.

"Now this boy's future depends entirely upon the decision that you people, the jury, make. Do you honestly believe that this boy should spend some of the best years of his life in a reform school, which, in my opinion, is old-fashioned and the best place for a boy to acquire new skills in crime? Or do you want to set this boy free under a psychiatrist's care, to develop into a clean living, well adjusted citizen?" concluded the lawyer.

A Home on Four Corners

There's a home on four corners,
An elm tree close by,
A place that means heaven to me;
There's a field full of hay,
And a barn painted grey,
'Tis home, what else could it be?

Where I learned my first lessons,
And walked on life's road,
O'er the path of a farm so free;
Where a hard-working mother
Looked down at her boy,
Weeping from a little hurt knee.

Oh if I could go back to that heaven,
To the corners I loved so dear,
And hear the voice of that mother,
That's been leading me through the year.

I know I would not find another
Of all the places I've known,
Like the house sitting near the four corners,
That's as dear as this place I call home.

Our Old Covered Bridge
(Stillwater Bridge)

Not far from home there stands a bridge
  And town folks boast and say,
"It's stood for over a hundred years
  And its just as straight today."

They talk of how the bridge was built
  For oxen carts and teams,
And how long wooden pegs were used
  To hold the massive beams.

Now engineers who know have said
  It soon must be torn down,
And they will build a modern one
  To connect us with Old Town.

But we are going to miss it,
  We know that very well,
And they'll never build its equal
  From what the old folks tell.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The student council of 1949-50 elected the following class officers: Ronald Cutliffe, President; Gilbert Cook, Vice-President; Pauline Martin, Secretary; and Patricia Ketchen, Treasurer.

One of the first activities of the council was the sponsoring of the sophomore reception, followed by the football dance. Later the board voted to conduct again a magazine sales contest. This campaign resulted in our earning a considerable sum for the treasury, which has helped finance many activities, including the science fair projects, the debating program, and the annual Christmas party. At this Christmas party the awarding of letters and sweaters was made. Several matters of special interest to students have been dicussed and acted on.

Our appreciation and thanks is extended to Mr. Abbott for his help and guidance throughout the year.

DEBATE CLUB

During the first of November the Debate Club began with enthusiasm to make plans and preparations for what has proved to be a successful season. The national high school question for debate this year has been—Resolved: that the President of the United States should be elected by direct vote of the people.

The Debate Club gained its first experience at the annual debate tourney in Bangor in which two teams were entered: affirmative, Marilyn Stubbs and Storer Emmett; negative, Robert Sibley and Betty Desjardins. The school was represented by two teams at the University of Maine tournament in February. The policy of the tournament is to have the teams debate alternately each side of the question. One team composed of Wilma Monroe and Betty Desjardins won three of the first four rounds, qualifying for the quarter-finals where they were eliminated by Lewiston.

In March the P. V. C. League debates were held at Bar Harbor, Brewer, and Ellsworth, with the results as follows: Robert Sibley and Storer Emmett of the affirmative team, winning five of their six debates, tied with Bar Harbor for the affirmative trophy. This team defeated John Bapst, Bucksport, Ellsworth, Orono, and Brewer, losing only to Bar Harbor. Wilma Monroe and Betty Desjardins of the negative team won three of their six debates, winning over Bucksport, Brewer, and John Bapst. This put them in third place in their field of competition.

In the preliminary rounds of the Bates Interscholastic League both teams were accorded a favorable two-to-one decision, the affirmative winning over Bangor and the negative over Fairfield. In these two leagues Betty Desjardins was named best speaker twice, Wilma Monroe once, and Storer Emmett six times. Other members who have been active in the club are Barbara Harris and Barbara McIntosh.

The members of the Debate Club wish to express their appreciation to Miss Joan Sullivan, who has served faithfully as our coach and has given us invaluable assistance.

At the annual Evening of Music program on May 11, the girls plan to sing "Jaunting to the Fair," and "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies." One of the above numbers will be presented at the graduation exercises. Tentative plans are now in progress for a special glee club to sing at the baccalaureate service.

The appreciation of the members is extended to Mrs. Carl Blake, the director, who has shown much patient guidance, and to Jane Stevens, club accompanist.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

At the organizational meeting of the Boys' Glee Club, the following officers were elected: President, Roger Libby; Vice-President, Howard Stevens; Secretary, Merle Guay; Publicity Manager, Storer Emmett.

The club meets weekly on Tuesday. Divided into three sections, first tenor, second tenor, and bass, the members first learned their parts by rote, but soon it became necessary to learn solfeggio. By the use of rounds and canons the boys learned to stay on their sectional parts; when this was accomplished, they progressed into three part music.

Tentative plans have been made for the boys to sing in the music night program. Selections for this presentation have not been definitely established, but Christmas carols, "The Curtains of Night," "Goodbye Ole Paint," "Turn Ye To Me," and numerous other songs have been rehearsed.

The assistance of the accompanist, Robert Sibley, has been deeply appreciated. The boys, too, wish to express their sincere gratitude for the patient guidance and training which the instructor, Mr. John Chapter, has given them.

BAND

Adding a great deal of color and musical support to the basketball games this year was the newly organized band. The band's debut proved to be very successful, and the many favorable comments gave much encouragement to the members, who for the most part are young, both in years and experience. At present plans are under way for the purchase of new uniforms which the group hopes to have when it participates in the music festival in Augusta on May 13.

This organization is composed of the following students from both junior and senior high schools: trumpets—Donald Parsons, William Marquis, Donald Marsh, William Girouard, Larry Dodge, Donald Smart, and Dexter Parsons; trombones—Miss Jenny Stevens, David Ketchen, Kenneth LaFlamme, and Kenneth Sheehan; saxaphones—Janet Littlefield, Patricia Cosseboom, Llewellyn Rand, and Buddy Stevens; baritone—Robert Sibley; sousaphone—Beverly Hinckley; clarinets—Joan Stormann, Betty Buzzell, Richard Sibo, John Marquis, Calista Sargent, Leith Wadley, and Dorothy Leonard; drums—Bobby Dow and Richard Chappelle.

The band wishes to extend its sincerest thanks to Mr. Leo Thayer, director, and Miss Helen Pierce, music supervisor, for their leadership.

THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS

The three one-act plays were presented by the O. T. H. S. Dramatics Club on March 31 at the Helen Hunt Auditorium. Those taking part in the first play, "Are We Dressing?" a comedy coached by Mrs. Carl Blake, were Dorothy Leonard, Robert Sibley, Lillian Soucy, Norman Duplessie, Howard Stevens, Jean Rustin, Barbara Harris, and Wilfred Marquis.

"The Levite," a poetic tragedy coached by Miss Olive Conley, was presented second. This play was put on again in Bangor on April 12, in competition with Bangor and Orono High Schools, this contest being a division of the state one-act play contest. The cast included Storer Emmett, Jean Barriault, Frances Martin, Patricia Cyr, Richard Fayle, Roger Cyr, Paul Cyr, and Bernard Shepherd.

Paul Clifford, Shirley King, Jessie Sargent, Rena Sheehan, and Roger Libby made up the cast of "Wilbur Takes His Medicine," a hilarious comedy coached by Miss Viola Curtis. Prompters were Jean Spearin, Betty Desjardins, and Hazel Partington. Stage managers were Esther Laliberte and Virginia Sargent.

DRAMATICS CLUB

The O. T. H. S. Dramatics Club again held try-outs at the beginning of the school year for prospective members. From this group, several sophomores as well as a sprinkling of juniors and seniors were chosen to be admitted into the club, bringing the membership to fifty persons.

At the election last spring Patty Ketchen was named director of the club for the '49-'50 season. Others voted into office were Barbara Harris, co-director; Joan Given, secretary; Dorothy Leonard, treasurer; Howard Stevens, program chairman; and Roger Libby, assistant program chairman.

A committee appointed by the director was instructed to consider the purchase of books and pamphlets that would be of use in preparing skits for assemblies and over the loud-speaking system. After the formal closing of each meeting, a program was presented by a committee appointed by the program director. The presentation of the three one-act plays on March 31, sponsored by the Dramatics Club, was again realized as the outstanding event of the season. At present, plans for a party for Dramatics Club members are being discussed.

We wish to extend our sincere appreciation to Mrs. Webber, our new faculty advisor, for her active assistance and helpful guidance in the attempt to make this another successful year for the O. T. H. S. Dramatics Club.

SENIOR PLAY

"Seventeen Is Terrific," dealing with the trials and tribulations of the Allenby family, truly proved to be "terrific" as presented by the senior class on November 18, 1949. Chuck (Roger Libby) and Barbie Allenby (Helen York) managed to entangle their family in many hilarious escapades in their attempt to get dates for the annual Spring Dance. George Bennett (Storer Emmett) and Nancy Pomeroy (Dorothy Leonard), chief confidants, advisers, and alibis of Chuck and Barbie, only served to complicate matters with their sluggish ways and misconstrued advice. The "Sherlock Holmes" of the household, Billy (Paul Cyr), and his shadow, Patsy Gardner (Jean Rustin), with their constant snooping and eavesdropping, prove to be quite the heroes as they unwind the mysterious cheering around these dynamic Allenbys. Dr. Allenby (Robert Sibley) finds his patience sorely tried as he comes home to rest his terribly sore feet, only to find the house in a turmoil. Notwithstanding her difficulties with the slow and sloppy Hannah Hawks (Joan Given), the country maid, and the antics of Janie Allenby (Dorothy MacPherson) who wishes to become a cheerleader, Grandma Wagner (Rena Sheehan) somehow manages to hold the household together. Pretty Ginny Grant (Marguerite Littlefield), the lass who rules Chuck's heart, and Hugo Jarvis (Howard Stevens), the ideal of all the girls in town, add the personal, romantic touch to the play.

Stage manager Leslie Fayle and prompters, Betty Desjardins and Hazel Partington, contributed greatly to the success of the play. The cast wish to express its appreciation to Mrs. Webber for her kind and helpful directing of the play.

JUNIOR SPEAKING EXHIBITION

Each year eight junior boys and girls are chosen to participate in the Junior Speaking Exhibition. These eight are selected from the junior class at large, each junior being required to recite a short selection before his English class.

This year the sixteen students surviving the quarter-finals were Jean Barriault, June Bartlett, Alden Brangwynne, Robert Beek, Lawrence Capen, Paul Clifford, Dorine Costigan, Norman Duplessie, Merle Guay, Marline Guitard, Barbara Harris, Deane Harris, Geraldine Oakes, Bernard Shepherd, Lillian Soucy, and Jean Spearin.

From this group eight were named to speak in the finals at the Helen Hunt Auditorium on December 20. They are as follows, listed in the order in which they spoke: Merle Guay, Jean Spearin, Lillian Soucy, Norman Duplessie, Paul Clifford, Jean Barriault, Barbara Harris, and Alden Brangwynne. All finalists were presented with silver medals appropriately engraved.

The junior speakers wish to express their thanks and appreciation to their coach, Mrs. Carl Blake.

CHEMISTRY-PHYSICS CLUB

On November 9, 1949, the Chemistry-Physics Club held its initial meeting for the year 1949-1950. At this time Howard Stevens was elected to be our president; Storer Emmett, vice-president; Patty Ketchen, secretary; Paul Cyr, treasurer.

This year the meetings have been made enjoyable, as well as instructive, through well planned programs of various types which followed the regular business meeting.

During the year the club has had access to various science magazines which have added a great deal to keeping the club informed of advancements made in the scientific field.

Since the Regional Science Fair is the biggest occasion of the year for science groups, much time has been spent in preparing projects for the event.

We are looking forward to an even bigger and better club next year.

We wish to express our appreciation to Mr. Redman for his kind and patient guidance throughout the school year.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

On September 21, 1949, the Future Homemakers assembled and elected the following officers: President, Jean Rustin; Vice-President, Dorothy Smith; Secretary, Pauline Martin; Treasurer, Gloria King; Scribe, Jean Spearin; Parliamentarian, Ruby Adams; Historian, Patricia Grant. Mrs. Leslie Jollymoor was selected to be our Chapter Mother.

A successful program of activities, consisting of parties, panel discussions, a mother-daughter banquet, and a spring fashion show, has been carried out by the members.

The club will again this year send a delegate to the annual convention of the Maine Association of F. H. A. At this time girls from all over the state will assemble, conduct a business meeting, and enjoy a program.

We wish to extend our thanks and appreciation to Miss Eloise Law, our new Chapter advisor, for her helpful guidance.

OLD TOWN CHAPTER OF FUTURE FARMERS

The officers of the F. F. A. for the year 1949-50 are as follows: President, Norman Duplessie; Vice-President, Edward Day; Secretary, Chellis Smith; Treasurer, Donald Parsons; Reporter, Harold Judkins; Sentinel, Wesley Carr.

Placing second in both the central district judging contest at Unity and the sweepstakes held at the U. of M. last June and last October, the Old Town Chapter members proved themselves worthy representatives of the school.

During the past summer the Chapter cooperative farm completed its best season to date. The total receipts amounted to $2,103.81. At a central district meeting which was held late in 1949 at the U. of M., Edward Day was elected president of the central district for the year 1949-50. The Old Town Chapter was the first in the central district to contribute toward the Future Farmer Memorial Room, which is to be located in the Union Building soon to be constructed at the U. of M.

The central district contests will be held at Old Town this year on April 22. Thirteen chapters are expected to be present. After the business meeting the following contests will take place: Speaking, Rope Splicing, Rafter Cutting, Potato Disease Identification, Cattle Judging, Poultry Judging, Milk Judging, and Weed and Forage Crop Identification.

The boys extend heartiest thanks to their instructor, Mr. Spearin, for his kind and helpful guidance during the year.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

We wish to congratulate the varsity basketball team for the fine record that it established throughout the basketball season. This was not only a record of wins and losses but also a record of sportsmanship for the team and for Old Town High School. We also wish to congratulate Coach Billie Summers for his grand job of coaching. The strength of the team was to a large extent the result of its respect for the coach. Although some of the games were a little tough and nerves were a bit shattered, the coach and the boys never let up.

The team won the Penobscot Valley Conference title and also their way to the semi-finals in the Eastern Maine Basketball Tournament. Because of these accomplishments several organizations have honored the team at banquets and luncheons, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored a trip to the state finals in Portland for them.

The team will lose three men this spring, namely the co-captains, Leland Parady and Fred White, and Ronald Cutliffe.

Old Town has not seen such a successful season of basketball for many years. It was made possible by the team, the

CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleaders attired in new kelley green uniforms had a very enjoyable season, leading the spirited fans through successful seasons of football and basketball.

Old Town High School was represented at the first cheering clinic held at Bangor in November.

We had two new cheers during basketball season: a novelty cheer, O.T.H.S., and a new Team Cheer.

The cheerleaders were Dorothy MacPherson, Ruth Riva, Jean Rustin, and Jane Stevens, seniors; Beverly Cates, Pauline Martin, and Jean Spearin, juniors; Ruth Brooks, Elaine Brown, and Eleanor Dow, sophomores.

Much appreciation and thanks are due Mr. Worth of the American Woolen Mill, who donated the green and white material to make our new uniforms possible.

We should like to extend our thanks and appreciation, also, to our patient and thorough director, Mr. Viola.

TRACK—1949

Early in April Coach Raymond Gove issued a call to his track team to begin spring practice. He drilled his team hard in an attempt to regain possession of the P. V. C. Trophy which was lost last year to Orono.

The team had an undefeated season, and. as their record shows, no team in this area could make the deficit less than twenty points.

This team went to Waterville to participate in the State Meet. A total of 8 points was scored by Old Town. Ronald "Moose" Richards placed second in the shot-put for 3 points, Ronald St. Louis placed third in the mile run for 2 points, and Al Geroux and Chellis Smith tied for second place in the Pole Vault for 1½ points each, bringing the total to 8 points. In a state meet one is lucky to place fourth.

This year's team will be a fresh green team but we wish them luck. Coach Gove deserves the sincere thanks of the team for the training he gave them.

FOOTBALL

The Old Town High School football team had an average season winning half of the games that were slated. The team played one game with John Bapst under the lights at the Garland Street Athletic Field. This game was well played on the part of both teams, but John Bapst had a very strong line that kept Old Town from scoring. The final score was John Bapst-8; Old Town-0. Old Town made up for this loss, however, by swamping Stearns 32-0.

Unfortunately the team will lose five very good men at graduation time: Ronald Cutliffe, Donald Cates, Storer Emmett, Alfred Geroux, and Leland Parady. All the students at Old Town High School and the graduating seniors wish next year's team the best of luck. Thanks from the team to Coach Blasenak and the assistant coaches.

BASEBALL—1949

The 1949 baseball squad, coached by Bernard MacKenzie, had the best season of all Old Town baseball teams since the P. V. C. was organized, winning 6 and losing 3. They were in on a three-way tie for the crown along with Bucksport and John Bapst. In regular season play they defeated John Bapst, but in the Eastern Maine Tournament play-off they were beaten in a ten inning duel by the same Bapst club that went on to take the Eastern Maine Championship. Bucksport and Bangor handed them one and two point losses respectively.

Al Geroux and Don MacDonald shared the pitching honors while Fred White and Ken Parady handled the backstop positions.

Only four of the ten lettermen will be back this spring, but the 1949 team was developed with only three first string players of the 1948 squad returning.

The team members would like to express their gratitude to Coach MacKenzie.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

As their fourteen and one record shows, the junior varsity basketball squad had an unusually successful season this year, under the able Coaching of Bernard MacKenzie. Their only loss was a one point decision to the Brewer Jayvees at Brewer. They closed their schedule with an impressive overtime win over a strong Bangor jayvee team. High scoring Jackie Cutliffe was outstanding throughout the year along with Frankie Sirois and Bobby Blair, who were the two varsity alternates. Dean Harris, Edward Taylor, Deane Finley, and Gilbert Cook also turned in some excellent basketball.

Randall, Wesley Carr, William Carr. R. Lavoie. C. Barriault, L. Haskell, A. Pelletier, N. Duplissie, C. Smith, G. Cook, L. Gallant. L. Kenneally, G. Valley, and F. Crocker.

In 1946-47 the Old Town F. F. A. team was runner-up in the Central District Tournament, and 1947-48 and 1948-49 they were Central District Champions.

Although the team was handicapped because of lack of equipment, space to practice, and inadequate transportation, our season resulted in some really decisive victories.

We wish to thank Mr. Spearin and the parents of the boys who gave a great deal of time and supplied transportation for the boys; also, our sincere appreciation is extended to Mr. MacKenzie for the loan of J. V. uniforms and to all others who contributed so much toward making our season successful.

CROSS COUNTRY

Coach Raymond Gove called the cross-country team to practice in September. After hard practice the team had its first meet on September 30 at Orono.

The team had a fair season, defeating Orono twice to make up for the losses suffered by our football team. The team took fourth place in a six-way meet and fourth in the state meet, both held at the University of Maine. Ronald St. Louis, Alden Bradbury, James Nelson, and Charles Simon, the main springs of the '49 team, will be back next fall. Three seniors will be leaving the team in June, Elmer Buchanan, Hilary Nelson, and Howard Stevens. Best of luck, boys.

The team thanks Coach Gove for his conscientious leadership.

SOFTBALL—1949

The softball team of 1949 concluded a very successful season with a record of nine wins and one loss. They overcame every opponent except Ellsworth. This game was a thriller, ending with a score of 9 to 8.

From a squad of twenty girls, Coach Blasenak built a strong and aggressive team which brought much glory to the Green and White, and was one of the best teams ever to represent Old Town High School.

The first game with Hampden was played by a very nervous and excited Old Town team. However, the girls soon overcame this "stage fright handicap" and won by a score of 28 to 17. Six more victories followed; then came the heart-breaking game with Ellsworth, the Penobscot Valley Champs.

The final game of the season was at Brewer, which ended a very pleasant and successful year for the Old Town nine.

The team wish to express their thanks and appreciation to Coach Blasenak, who spent so much time and effort in coaching the softball girls.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

At the beginning of basketball season, which got under way late, about sixty enthusiastic girls reported for practice. After four weeks of practice the squad was cut to about thirty, and from this group a squad of twelve was chosen to play two games with a strong, experienced Howland team.

The first game was played at Howland, a hard and fast game against an experienced squad. The girls were all nervous and excited about their first game, and the game ended with Howland winning by a large margin.

The second game was played at Old Town. This game was much faster and the Old Town girls held their own all the way to the end. Howland won by a much smaller margin than they did in the previous contest.

Although losing both games, the girls thoroughly enjoyed the season. Most of the players lacked experience and didn't have the opportunity to display their skill in many games, but their performances showed great promise for the future.

Many thanks to Mrs. Merle Webber who gave much of her time and effort to coach these girls.

This alumni section is compiled for you as completely and accurately as we alumni editors are able to make it up. We regret that some names and details have had to be omitted but, even after extensive effort, we were still unable to secure the necessary information. Members of the classes of 1950, 1948, 1945, 1942, and 1932 are strongly urged to send the following information by postcard to Alumni Editors, Old Town High School, Old Town, Maine, by December, 1950: name (maiden name as well as husband's name if married), where employed, where residing, and a member of what class. This cooperative act will indeed contribute toward a more effective alumni section.

TO THE STUDENTS OF OLD TOWN HIGH SCHOOL:

This year, as in the past, we've enjoyed working with both the students and faculty while taking pictures of the senior class and student organizations. It has been a very pleasing part of our work, helping you prepare a permanent reminder of the happy days you have had while attending Old Town High School.

Sincerely yours,
ED, BOB and LARRY GRAFFAM
